Public Meetings Will Be Held to Discuss Proposed Disposal of Our Utilities

Council Accepts Offer of Calgary Power Company for Utilities—Company Will Take Over Electric Light, Water and Sewer Systems—Ample Water Supply Assured—By-Law Will Be Submitted to Ratepayers at an Early Date

A special meeting of the City Council was held on Thursday evening of last week, when the proposition of the Calgary Power Company to purchase Wetaskiwin's electric light and water systems and operate same for a period of ten years, was very carefully and thoughtfully considered. Messrs. Baxter, Planché and Thompson representing the power company, were at the meeting.

Mr. Baxter, who was the principal spokesman for the company, stated that the proposed purchase price was based on an estimated revenue, at the Calgary Power Company rates, of $23,400, less $4,700, the cost of pumping water. The k.w. were 205-000 for light, 118,000 for power, and 180,000 for pumping.

Referring to the expense, Mr. Baxter pointed out that the interest on an investment of $120,000 would be $9,000. A depreciation of four per cent on power—$90,000—was $3,600, while a three per cent depreciation on water—$100,000—would amount to $3,000.

Mr. Baxter stated that the company could install a complete new system adequate for Wetaskiwin's requirements, at a high valuation of $55,000, so that in effecting $120,000 for the utilities, the company was making a very generous offer. The light and power system could be maintained and operated, alone, for $4,000 a year, while the maintenance and operation of the water system was estimated at $3,000. The cost of manufacturing and delivering power to Wetaskiwin would be $13,750 a year for the quantity used at present.

Answering an inquiry, Mr. Baxter said that all employees connected with the utilities would be given employment wherever possible. The company proposed to invest new capital to the amount of $3,000 to improve the light system, while the cost of replacing the water distribution system, the cost of removing the tank, fixing up the storage, connections, etc., would be $10,000.

The representatives assured the Council that ample water would be supplied for the city's needs, but this would entail a large expenditure. In answering the criticism that the power service might be interrupted by breakages for long periods, Mr. Baxter pointed out that Wetaskiwin would be supplied from the line running to Edmonton (a short distance from this city) and that the Edmonton contract provided for continuous service, with a heavy penalty attached for non-delivery, so that Wetaskiwin would be well protected in the matter, and, further, power would be brought here eventually from three directions.

The company would take over the water system and operate it on the present basis, namely, supply water at a minimum of $2.25, with free water to all those who have had that privilege in the past. They will also take over the sewer system and operate same.

The estimated cost of supplying electricity at the Wetaskiwin substation is 2 1/2 per k.w., while the rates to consumers were published in a previous issue.

After a general and lengthy discussion, it was moved by Ald. Howatt and French—"That in view of the fact that the Calgary Power Co. has refused to accept the city's offer to sell the light and water utilities for $180,000, as per resolution of last meeting, that we accept their offer of $125,000, subject to a satisfactory agreement being entered into." The resolution carried, the vote being: Ayes—Ald. Howatt, French, Ellis and Thorson. Nay—Mayor Montgomery, Ald. Scott and Cook.

That the matter may be correctly and fairly explained to the ratepayers, the Calgary Power Company consented to send a man here to address a public meeting before the vote on the matter is taken.

The meeting adjourned.

The regular meeting of the City Council was held on Tuesday evening with all members, excepting Ald. Cook, in attendance.

After the adoption of the minutes of last regular and special meetings, Victor Johnson offered $200 for the Alderman Ivery barn and to exchange one 60 ft. lot on Lorne street for two 26 ft. lots on Railway St. east, adjoining the Alderman property. Referring to the Lands Committee for report.

Alex. Cummings requested the use of water at the Athletic Grounds for the accommodation of the Indians encamped there during treaty time. This was granted.

C. H. Russell, wrote Council re the taking out of L. G. Kelley's property amounting to about 27 acres, from the city limits. Referred to Finance Committee.

A bond house in Toronto wired on behalf of client wanting $1500 worth of Wetaskiwin Waterworks Bonds retired. Explanatory letter will be forwarded.

The Mayor of the City of London, Ont., sent greetings by first airmail to the Mayor of Wetaskiwin. Mr. Fraser will send suitable reply.

The Utilities Committee was given the letter of best advantage.

Weddings

NELLES-SCHARFF

A very beautiful wedding was solemnized at the Manito, Wetaskiwin, on Tuesday, July 23, at 5:30 p.m., when William James Hector Nelles, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelles, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony with Freda Mabel Scharff, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Scharff of Millet.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and accompanied by her sister Constance, while the groom was supported by his brother Alvin. Mrs. Albert Heller, sister of the groom, played the Wedding March.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. L. Elliott and was witnessed by about twenty-five family friends.

The lovely bride was very charming in a gown of peach georgette, carrying a bouquet of carnations and wearing a necklace of amber. The bridegroom wore a dress of peach flat crepe.

After signing the register and exchanging in a very hearty and happy manner congratulations and good wishes, the entire party repaired to the Driad-banquet room and enjoyed a most sumptuous wedding banquet as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Scharff.

The toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. Scharff and spoken to by Mr. C. Nelles and Rev. A. L. Elliott. A social hour was spent with music and dancing at the leisure of the guests.

The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace and bracelet, to the bride a bracelet and to the bridegroom a pair of cuff links.

A large number of friends and neighbors were present at the funeral to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed, and the floral tributes were especially beautiful and numerous among them being: Gervase Sunshine Club, spray of carnations; U. F. W. A., spray of carnations; The Family, carnations and roses; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Freeman, spray, also bouquet of home grown roses, Grecian cross and baby breath; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jevne, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Alf Jevne, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Freeman, spray; Mrs. J. D. Soper, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maynard, sweet peas; Mr. and Mrs. Rupertus and family, Sweet Williams; Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnson, carnations; Mr. and Mrs. L. Logren, carnations; Mrs. Ed. Cress, bouquet carnations; Mrs. Alvin Anderson, carnations.

The pall bearers were Messrs. P. Freeman, A. Rupertus, W. Turnquist, R. P. Williams, Chris. Maynard and J. Maynard. The interment took place in the family plot in the Gwynne cemetery.

CITIZENS TO DECIDE VERY IMPORTANT QUESTION

In the very near future, the ratepayers of Wetaskiwin will be called upon to decide one of the most important questions which has ever arisen in this city. At a meeting of the City Council on Thursday evening last, the offer of the Calgary Power Company of $125,000 for the light, power, water and sewer utilities of Wetaskiwin was accepted, and this proposal will be voted on by the ratepayers as soon as the necessary steps are carried out.

In another column we have quoted some of the figures submitted by the Calgary Power Company, which appear to be very reasonable. The Company agrees to furnish the city with an adequate water supply at exactly the same rate as at present, which is a much lower price than the city can possibly manufacture it for. This will enable the company to supply electricity to the consumers at about one-third the present rates, and still make a good profit.

On the surface, this appears to be a good proposal for the city to accept, but the question is so complicated that it should be given the most serious thought. One or more public meetings should be held where every phase of the question can be discussed, so that an intelligent vote will be registered when the time comes.

If any ratepayer desires to publicly express his views on this momentous question, either for or against the proposal, the columns of The Times are at his disposal. We will welcome the opinions of the ratepayers as to whether we should continue to operate our municipally owned utilities, or whether they should be disposed of to a private company.

The Indians of the Hobbema reservation received their treaty money this week, and many of them are in the city enjoying the usual celebration following such an important event.

A very unfortunate affair took place on the farm of Carl Larson, ten miles north of the city, on Wednesday of last week, when Rudolf Rudloff took his own life by cutting his throat with a razor. He arrived in the district about two months ago from Sweden and was aged twenty-two years. An inquest was held at Moore's Undertaking Parlors on Thursday evening by Dr. Bratwaite, provincial coroner, when the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by cutting his throat with a razor, and that no blame could be attached to anyone.

The funeral took place on Friday, service being conducted by Rev. P. M. Meyer. Interment was in the Wetaskiwin cemetery.

Century of the Century Will Provide Keenest of Competition at Big Sports

Miss Norma Chiddy to Compete in Eight Women's Events at Provincial Track and Field Championships Here Both Morning and Afternoon of Wednesday, August 7, in Greatest Athletic Card Ever Presented in the District Competitors From All Parts of Alberta in Competition

When Miss Norma Chiddy toes the mark in the hundred yard dash at the Provincial Track and Field Championships to be held here on Wednesday, August 7th, the ensuing contest may well be termed the "century of the century"; for never before in the present decade has such interest been displayed, in an athletic sense, as in this century dash, with the keenest of competition assured. The Edmonton Olympic Club in itself boasts this year of a quartet of women sprinters capable of negotiating the hundred yards with twelve second speed in Miss Mary Humphries, Ethel Barrett, Owen Reeborough and Charlotte Daws, the winsome miss who last year's meet here won the all-round junior girls' championship of Alberta.

Predictions are freely made that the record of twelve seconds equalled by Miss Chiddy at Banff last year when she won the women's all-round championship of the province will be shattered in this race. Calgary, Red Deer, Medicine Hat, Cardston and other places in the south country are sending large squads of athletes of both sexes, and included in these doubtless will be a number of "dark horses." Norma defeated the trio of Edmonton speed merchants by inches in the final of the 100-yard dash at Port Saskatchewan, as well as in her "heat" to qualify, but had to be content with third in the 250 yard run. Later, in the arena at Edmonton, in an exhibition hundred yards on a small circular track, Miss Humphries shaded the Wetaskiwin girl. While up Edmonton way they argue that the issue is as well as decided already, in Wetaskiwin confidence in Miss Norma is unbounded to hit the tape ahead of her adversaries in both the 100 and 220.

Miss Chiddy has never been defeated in the running high jump, though she was forced to beat the Alberta record to tie with Miss Barnett, of the Edmonton Olympic Club, the mark reached on that occasion, in the arena, being four feet seven inches. Norma will have the keenest of competition, however, as Miss Boulanger and others of Edmonton, have been steadily improving, and from the south come rumblings that some tall leaps will be made by their aspirants.

There are eight events on the women's program, and Miss Chiddy will compete in them all: 100 yards, 220-yards, standing broad jump, running high jump, 8-pound shot put and discus throw. She is doing nicely in her training, and undoubtedly Wetaskiwin will be particularly interested in every event in which she participates.

Besides the eleven events for boys under 18 and a half dozen for girls under 18, all provincial championships, there will be several non-championship events for boys and girls under 14 years, including sprints, jumps, and novelty races. The women folk will be provided with plenty of competition in the wall driving contest, married ladies' race and last, but not least, will be the crowning of the Rolling Pin Queen, a contest absolutely new and novel.

Tug-of-war and ladies' relay between teams representing Northern and Southern Alberta are special events that will create a great deal of interest. Wetaskiwin Lodge No. 1559, Loyal Order of Moose, which last year donated the aggregate cup for the boys' championships, this year are providing eight beautiful prizes for the winners of the tug-of-war.

And then there's the hunt for the Mysterious Mr. Raffles. There are no "strings" nor no "catch" in this competition. One and all are given a free hand to nab him, the rules of the contest, which appear on another page, being quite simple.

There'll be a baseball game between Millet and Wetaskiwin High, and these teams will provide heaps of excitement. The old favorite horse shoe game will find its place among the amusements provided, so all in all it will be the biggest day Wetaskiwin has ever had.

And as for competition in track and field events, entries are being received from communities unheard of before. In addition to athletes of both sexes from Calgary, Red Deer, Cardston, Medicine Hat and Edmonton, and smaller centres represented last year, such places as Blaine, Raymont and Magrath in the south, and Kilkenny and Loyalist in the northern part of the province are represented in the entry list.

Entries for the non-championship events may be made on the grounds, but for the championship events entries must be filed before August 6, with B. W. Bellamy, secretary of the committee, Wetaskiwin, who will supply the necessary forms on application.

EDMONTON GOLFERS VISITED WETASKIWIN

Twelve members of the Municipal Golf Club, Edmonton, including Jas. Pettit, paid a friendly visit to the Wetaskiwin Club on Sunday last. Unfortunately nearly all the members of the Wetaskiwin Club were on their holidays, and it was therefore impossible to supply opposition to the visitors. Mrs. Horne, provincial champion of Saskatchewan, as well as the champion of Edmonton City, was also among the visitors.

A very strong wind swept the Wetaskiwin district early Sunday morning, which did damage to the telegraphic and telephone service in some localities. In Wetaskiwin some large trees were blown down and many small branches were broken off the trees, but little damage is reported.

These statements, which are official, based upon the Dominion Census of 1926, the accuracy of which has never been questioned, reveal the lop-sided way in which improper representation in the Alberta Legislature has affected many parts of this province. Why, for instance, should Macleod with a total population of 3,862, be entitled to one member, while Vegreville, with a population of 16,409, has only one member? Why is it that a group of constituencies south of Red Deer, including Cardston, Clareholm, Cochrane, Cypress, Empress, High River, Innisfail, Little Bow, Macleod, Nanton, Okotoks, Olds, Pincher Creek and Ponoka have a member each, when constituencies like Camrose, Lacombe, Red Deer, Leduc, Peace River, Sedgewick, Stettler, Sturgeon, Vegreville, Victoria, Vermilion, and Wetaskiwin are so grossly under-represented?

Are the people of Group D twice as good as the people of Group C, and therefore accorded double representation?

So far as the cities are concerned, the Observer notes that they are on the job already demanding extra representation, Calgary alone demanding two more members and Edmonton will probably follow Calgary's lead.

At the moment this matter of representation is paramount in the province. A redistribution bill is due at the next session. The legislative committee in charge of the bill is in session at Edmonton this week. Whatever this committee may fix upon will undoubtedly be submitted to the legislature at the next session as a fair and equitable division of the province into electoral units.

In a general way, the proceedings of this redistribution committee, while not shrouded in mystery, have been lost sight of by the public, which is notoriously inclined to forget all about the legislature, once adjournment is taken. But the matter is of sufficient importance to demand attention and the Observer ventures to call upon the rural weekly newspapers to present the above figures to their readers, with appropriate comments thereon.—Vegreville Observer.

RESTATING THE FARM SITUATION

Why farmers should need legislative help has been a puzzle to many city dwellers during the years of agitation which brought into being the new agricultural marketing act. In a sense it may be said that the farmer has become the victim of his own efficiency in production, that efficiency having been unaccompanied by increased efficiency in marketing his products. With the introduction of new machinery, the individual American farm worker has more than doubled his output since 1880. Even before the world war his labor was 159 per cent more productive than that of farm workers in the leading European countries.

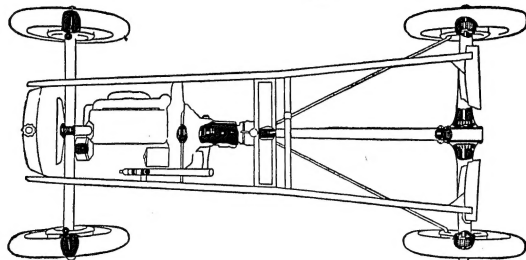

This increased efficiency has had two unfortunate results. In the first place, it has driven many workers from the farms, where they were no longer needed. During the last ten years there has been a net loss of 4,489,000 in the farm population in this country. The farmer boy of ten years ago is likely to be found now working in a garage or running a gasoline filling station. In the second place, efficiency has decreased farm profits through overproduction. The existence of a surplus to be exported and sold in the world market brings down the domestic price of the product. In the five years ended with 1925 more than 1,000,000 American farmers became bankrupt. During that period, while the value of other property was increasing, farm property decreased enormously in value. Such property has now no sale except at distress prices. Very much of it has been taken over by banks and other holders of farm mortgages. As a frozen asset it has dragged down hundreds of banks and has crippled many hundreds more.

Other circumstances have added to the farmer's distress. While the manufacturer is protected by the tariff, while the laborer benefits by the restriction of immigration, while the railroads are assured of a profit, the farmer—until a month ago—has had the benefit of no effective legislation in his favor. He had to bear without assistance the deflation in farm values following the world war. He is forced to pay freight both on what he sells and on what he buys. Because he cannot hide his property from assessors, he is required to pay full taxes, whereas the owners of intangible property ordinarily escape taxes.

These facts need to be more fully understood by city people. The man who owns and operates a farm not only is entitled to a fair return on both his investment and his labor, but actually must have such a return if he is to continue to perform his indispensable tasks. Though his situation is better than it was a few years ago, the purchasing power of farm products is still about 15 per cent below the pre-war level.

In these circumstances it is clear that city dwellers have a direct personal interest which should cause them to desire that substantial benefits accrue to the farmer from the new marketing act. In the meantime they should know that, as an outgrowth of LAVISH use of ball and roller bearings in the Ford car greatly reduce friction and contribute to easier operation and longer life of the car. Note the coasting ability of the Ford car as compared to any other automobile in its weight class.

Examination of the chassis will at once show the advantages of these bearings. On the rear axle pinion and differential all the taper roller bearings are held to such close limits that adjustment is unnecessary, pinion and ring gear always being held in proper mesh.

Spiral roller bearings are used in the rear hub because of their large bearing surface and ability to carry heavy loads. One is also used on the drive shaft at the universal joint end, to assure perfect alignment.

Taper roller bearings in the front wheels have a simple adjustment. Roller thrust bearings on the spindle bolts make for easy steering. Two bearings, one above and one below, take up the thrust on the steering worm.

The fan shaft operates on a roller bearing. The generator, the transmission, the connection between the spline and drive shafts, the clutch, the flywheel—all these important parts are made more efficient and enduring through the use of ball and roller bearings.

These bearings form a striking illustration of the engineering skill and care used in building the Ford car.

SUMMER DIARRHOEA

More babies die in Canada during the month of September than during any other month of the year. The reason for this is because so many of the babies are weakened by attacks of diarrhoea during the hot summer months, they fall victims to second attacks of the disease or to other conditions, which, in their weakened state, they are unable to withstand. In the year 1928, over 4,200 babies died as a result of diarrhoea. This means that, on an average, over eleven babies died each day during the year because of this condition. There are not nearly as many deaths now from this cause as there were only a few years ago, but we are still paying a heavy toll. The progress which has been made is practical evidence that diarrhoea can be largely prevented if we will but take the necessary measures to do it.

The more serious forms of diarrhoea can be largely prevented if we will but take the necessary measures to do it.

The more serious forms of diarrhoea are due to germs which gain entrance to the body in water, milk or other food. The reason why it occurs more frequently in warm weather and why it is commonly known as summer diarrhoea is because, when milk is warm, any germs which are in the milk grow rapidly, and when such milk is given to babies, they receive, as it were, a large dose of germs which cause diarrhoea. Breast-fed babies seldom have this type of diarrhoea because breast milk is practically sterile, that is, free from germs. This is one of the reasons why every child should be breast-fed. The surest and most practical way to prevent diarrhoea is to breast-feed.

For babies who cannot be breast-fed, and for older children, milk which is pasteurized should be used. If pasteurized milk cannot be purchased, then it should be pasteurized in the home. After pasteurization, every care must be taken of milk, in order to keep it cold and free from dirt and flies. Milk is a most valuable food, but it must be cared for or it is dangerous.

Mothers should realize that if a diarrhoea does occur, it is a serious condition, and the time to call a doctor is immediately, not several days later when the baby is acutely ill. Questions, concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

The noted botanist had given instructions that a dish of mushrooms he had gathered were to be cooked and given to his wife at supper time. On the following morning the botanist regretted his wife anxiously.

"Did you sleep well, my dear," he asked.

"Splendidly."

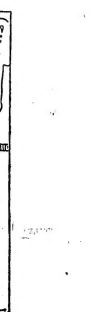

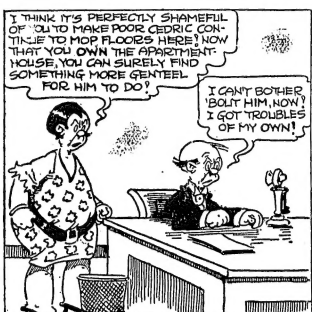

"You didn't feel ill at all during the night? No pains or anything like that?"

"Of course not, dear."

"Good!" he cried. "I've discovered yet another species of mushroom that isn't poisonous."

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Dr. Long is visiting Southley Downs to which he is conducted by Ahmad Das, an Oriental. There he meets Mr. Southley, whom a detective friend, Alexander Pierce, has told him to watch, and his son Ernest Southley, Mr. Hayward and his son Vilas, and then Josephine Southley, whom he had seen faint on the train. Josephine tells him the story of Southley Downs and its ghost, which is not the ghost of a human being but of a tiger.

Dr. Long has a quarrel with Vilas Hayward over Josephine, and finds that the Haywards have a strange authority over the Southleys. He is ordered to leave Southley Downs. The rain prevents him leaving at once. Dr. Long and Ernest go out on the road in the rain looking for the tracks of a tiger that Ernest says are there.

They find the tracks. Later Ernest and Dr. Long see a prowling creature in the hall of Southley Downs. This frightens the elder Hayward, who also sees it. Ernest begins to feel that Ahmad Das is perpetrating some devilry.

The older Hayward is later found dead, his neck broken as if by a giant's blow.

The coroner and police arrive in order to investigate. Because of the murder, Dr. Long in the hall of Southley Downs. This the persons there are questioned by Inspector Freeman.

Dr. Long becomes jealous of the love he believes to exist between Vilas Hayward and Josephine. During the course of investigations of the crime Dr. Long becomes suspicious of a man named Robin. He determines to watch him.

NOT SOON WITH THE STORY

In some way that I was yet to find out, he was involved in the problem of Southley Downs. He had washed the blood from the rock on the hillside. He had eluded the inspector and myself in the chase in the darkness. Now I had found him with Southley working upon the engine in the power-house—and yet they had seemed merely to be examining it, rather than at work. I remembered that neither of them had held tools in their hands, or even seemed to have any tools with them.

I was suddenly deeply suspicious of this man Robin. I remembered that he had volunteered his services to the negro Sam, and that looked as if he had business of his own at Southley Downs. His excuse for coming seemed somewhat trumped-up. Besides, he looked his part too well. He was too perfect an example of a certain type of squatter. He had an English accent, and I had been watching all through my visit at Southley Downs for the intrusion of some one with such an accent.

Roderick, of whom Alexander Pierce had told me, who evidently had not yet put in his appearance, had lived long years in England. The names were somewhat similar, too; and I had heard before of that peculiar trait of human nature that influences a man against giving up his own name altogether. The alias he adopts is usually somewhat similar to his own name.

I made a feint of going back to a book. Southley seemed relieved. He left me in a moment, and joined his daughter in the den. Vilas had gone to his room, and lost as it was among the many, breathless corridors of the great house, I could imagine it was the last place in the world he had really wished to go. I drew my chair up to the great dormer window that overlooked the power-house. And I didn't see one word of the type beneath my eyes.

The hill was silver by moonbeams. There was a silver path across the face of the swamp, leading over to my eyes. I waited possibly five minutes. And then I saw Robin emerge from the power-house.

For a long time he waited in the shadows, and my suspicions leaped to a certainty. Then I saw him steal away toward the edge of the marsh.

A minute more and I was out in the darkness too, trying to shadow him. I tried to keep to the less open part of the hillside and yet not lose sight of my quarry. He walked slowly at first and I shortened the distance between us to one hundred yards. As yet I had no reason for thinking he had seen me. His form was perfectly visible in the moonlight, but I had kept mostly in the shadow. But all at once he increased his pace.

I walked faster, too. My quarry broke into a slow trot. It was impossible that I could run behind him and still keep out of sight. So I made a furious dash toward him at top speed.

For a moment I thought I would overtake him before he saw me; but when I had covered half the distance between us he began really to run. He straightened out his long legs, and fairly seemed to fly—straight for the marsh at the bottom of the hill. "Stop, Robin!" I shouted at him. "Stop at once!"

He only increased his speed. I never saw a man run faster. I was in good condition, and I gave him the best I had. He hadn't the chance to elude me that he had in our previous encounter earlier in the evening. The moon was out now.

He splashed across a pond of shallow water at the base of the hill. Possibly he thought I would not follow him here. But he was to be disappointed. No water was deep enough to throw me off now. I was going to find out his connection with the crime if I had to follow him to the mainland across the swamp.

But at once he splashed out of the pond and circled back up the hill. I was soaked to the knees, but I gave it no thought. Of course he couldn't run so fast up the steep slope, nor could I. And my breath was coming in great sobs before I approached the house.

He swung about the great structure, and I dipped far enough to one side to watch. I saw him slip into the postern door that led to the library. Twenty seconds later I entered the same room. Evidently he had hoped to elude me in the maze of rooms. But he had forgotten one thing.

His boots—the same boots that had left the telltale track beside the rock—were splashed with mud and water. They made a trail across the rugs and hardwood floor of the library. And they turned into the den.

Once more the drama of Southley Downs had shifted to this little room. Once more I stood at its threshold. And I had a curious sense of portentous developments that would come to pass within its doors.

Southley and Josephine were standing up near the same table that had figured in the drama the previous night.

"Close the door," Southley told me. "But where is that man Robin? I saw him rush in here. And I know he has something to do with this mystery." "Robin? You mean the man who helped me in the power-house?"

A large blue portiere hung at the side of the den, and out of the corner of my eye I saw it waver. No wind blew it. And then, looking straight, I saw the ends of white fingers that clutched its folds.

"Mr. Southley, the man is behind the curtain now!"

Then the man behind the curtain answered me himself.

"Oh, old Doc Long!" came a familiar voice. "You're the most persistent devil!"

There is only one person in the world that calls me "old Doc Long." The hope of hearing his voice about this cursed house of the Southleys was dead in my breast. It was the voice of the man I had longed for, whose deep brain and able hands would so quickly bring light where there was shadow.

He pulled the curtain aside, the gray eyes laughed at me. I saw through the disguise at last, and marveled at my blindness heretofore. Of course it was no one but my old and trusted friend, that world-famous detective and fisherman, Alexander Pierce.

After we had got through pounding one another on the back and roaring out what a pleasure it was to meet again I began to put a few questions to the great detective. And all the time I marveled at his disguise. "But why didn't you let me in on it?" I demanded just a little hurt. "I saw laughter in his eyes, but his face remained grave."

"You were doing so well without me, doc," he replied. "And the way you chased me through the mud—it was rich, my lad! What a persistent devil you are! Miss Southley—if ever this young man gets on your trail, you'll never be able to shake him off."

"Miss Southley already knows that," I commented. "And look at my trousers—my best dinner clothes. You are a little wet yourself!"

"These beautiful boots protected me." Then he grew serious. "Besides, Long—among your many talents I'm afraid you can't claim to be an actor. Just a look—a word—might have given me away. It was much better that you devote your attention to the excellent work Inspector Freeman has been doing. And as to the reason why I came in disguise—I don't believe the time is quite ripe to divulge it. I assure that it served my ends very well."

Frank Lucas in By-Gone Tales

Frank Lucas, pioneer farmer and old time resident of the Peace Hills area, along the Stony Creek, near Wetaskiwin, was one of the many old timers who flocked together daily at the Old Timers' Cabin at the Exhibition grounds.

Yarns of 40, 50 and more years ago were swapped by the old guard and many reminiscences of old times were recalled.

Mr. Lucas brought back to mind one instance of an occasion when a Mountie got his man under the most unenviable, not to say hazardous, and extremely dangerous circumstances.

The occasion was all the more notable by reason of the fact that an Edmontonian was the central figure in the grim drama. Indeed he was none other than Major Arthur Henry Griesbach, father of Major General William A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., original commanding officer of the 4th Battalion, the Edmonton Regiment, and later General Officer Commanding the First Canadian Infantry Brigade, 1st Canadian Division.

The story as told by Mr. Lucas, who despite his advancing years, retains all his youthful vigor and enthusiasm for fact, is as follows:

When paying treaty money, it was the custom to send a squad of Mounties along for the purpose.

Following the Rebellion of 1885 there was more or less of an epidemic of horse-theft among some of the younger Indian bucks and in particular there was one large, daring Indian, half Stony and half Cree, whose capture was specially desired by the authorities.

On the occasion of payment of treaty money to the Indians at Hobbema, Major Griesbach was despatched from the Mountie barracks at Fort Saskatchewan, with a squad of men, to pay the money.

During the rebellion the Stony Indians had been loyal.

S. B. Lucas, brother of Frank, was then Indian agent and he informed Major Griesbach he would give him all possible assistance in capturing the wanted buck, but suggested that if at all possible capture should be avoided while the buck was in a tent, as that would be an indication to the Stonies of an unfriendly feeling and he feared they would take offense.

Time was passing on and Major Griesbach was growing anxious for his man.

Suddenly he caught sight of the young buck sneaking into a Stony tent. Major Griesbach, alert and sensing that never again would there be such a favorable opportunity for capture, waited not to delegate one of his men to make the desired arrest, but himself dashed forward, into the tent, clutched the buck by the shoulder, placed him under arrest, and dragged him from the teepee.

The late Rev. John McDougall, pioneer missionary, and S. B. Lucas were not far away and they heard a great commotion. They hurried to the source of the noise and upon rounding the corner of a teepee were confronted with a horrifying sight.

Standing with his hand clutching the shoulder of the powerful buck was Major Griesbach.

On either side of the Major was an equally powerful Stony Indian, each with the muzzle of a loaded rifle pressed against a side of his head. Both Indians were drawing themselves back to shoot.

Both Rev. Mr. McDougall and Mr. Lucas knew the Indian language and rushed forward and after a heated though hurried argument, persuaded the Indians to stay their hands, pointing out the other Mounties were not far away and would cause retaliation

STOCK BREEDERS HOLD MEETINGS AT EDMONTON

Several livestock associations and groups of breeders for particular breeds have held meetings at the exhibition, in some instances taking advantage of the presence of association fieldmen in the city besides numerous breeders who were exhibitors, and Thursday was no exception.

Getting away from the exhibition grounds, the Alberta Provincial Sheep Breeders' association gathered in the city council chamber for a discussion of the proposed three-year cooperative wool pool contract and of the proposed annual contract of the organization at Edmonton handling the wool and the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers. A full discussion took place but no decision was made because of the small attendance.

A group of the Holstein breeders met with Harold Stevens, their western fieldman. The general feeling was that the breed was going strong and making a great name as dairy producers. The Northern Alberta Ayrshire Breeders' club met before James

Our Basic Industries

W. Irvine, M.P.—from Hansard

Mr. William Irvine (Wetaskiwin): It is very fitting and necessary that this house should spend some time considering the basic industry of Canada. I am sorry that the house could not have had some definite information about this matter to have been brought before us at this time. Had that information been afforded us, we should now probably have available the material which we have collected during the years and which bears upon the subject before us. As it is, we are more or less compelled to speak on a moment's notice and to depend upon our memories for whatever facts we may bring forward. I should like at the outset to point out that I do not think we shall solve this problem by the kind of discussion we have heard tonight and which we will doubtless continue to hear until the subject is disposed of. The element of party politics is ever present in all discussions on the floor of the house, and I presume none of us is absolutely free from that feeling. In the discussion of whatever subject may be under consideration, no doubt each one is trying his best to secure some advantage for his own particular party or group. This is one of the phases of our present parliamentary system which we must grin and bear. I do hope that in the very near future, however, the government will take the necessary steps to institute a thorough inquiry into the entire agricultural industry, an inquiry which will be quite untrammelled by partisanship and which will be conducted with a view to obtaining the facts as to the actual economic outlook of the industry and discovering what can be done to improve those conditions.

I am sure most of us will be grateful to the hon. gentleman (Mr. Senn) who has brought this very important question to the attention of the house. No one will say that the agricultural industry of Canada is on a sound basis at present; in fact perhaps we must admit that agriculture does not seem to be on a very sound basis in any country. When all is said and done the agricultural problem of Canada is not peculiar to this country; there are agricultural problems of a very serious character everywhere, and perhaps one reason for this condition is that agriculture itself is passing through a phase of industrial development which perhaps we have not fully understood and to which we are not able quickly to accommodate ourselves. However, there are problems which are peculiarly Canadian, some of which might be mentioned in passing before I proceed to deal with the specific matter to which the attention of the house has been directed. I think agriculture is suffering, among other things, from over-capitalization, with regard to the high prices paid for both land and machinery; and it is also over-capitalized because in relation to the amount produced the overhead is much too great. I would say also that agriculture is suffering from having to pay a much too high rate of interest. This is one of the chief hardships of agriculture in western Canada in particular. I believe that agriculture in Canada is suffering also from a decided discrimination in taxation. The dairy branch of agriculture has been effected by the Australian treaty; I do not think anyone can seriously deny that and it is the dairy industry as affected by the Australian treaty which is before the house tonight.

I want to association myself with the sentiments of the hon. gentleman who introduced this subject; indeed I must say that the dairymen of the riding of Wetaskiwin, which I have the honor to represent, have spoken emphatically on this issue. The Minister of Finance goes to the Montreal Gazette to find out what the cows are doing, but he should go to the farmers of Canada to get that information. I venture to say that the minister will not go to the Montreal Gazette for the cream for his porridge to-morrow morning, and I do not see why he should go to that newspaper for his information as to the economic condition of the dairymen. At any rate, I know that the dairymen of my own riding have expressed themselves in no uncertain way to the extent that the Australian treaty has hurt their business, and that is the question now before us.

The hon. member who introduced this subject quoted figures to prove at least to his satisfaction a very material decrease in the production of butter and a further decrease in the number of dairy herds, with a corresponding increase in the production of butter and in the dairy herds of New Zealand. I do not know whether his figures are accurate, but I noticed that the Minister of Finance produced another set of figures. I think it is to be deplored that there seems to be no way of getting accurate figures. If we cannot get them right we would be far better off to leave them out entirely, but surely there is some source to which we may go for figures which may be accepted by both sides of the house. Apparently it is the practice for one side of the house to get the facts which suit them and for the other side to disregard those facts and secure quite different information. I am not charging that the hon. gentleman who introduced the subject gave incorrect figures, but it is very strange that the Minister of Finance should find it necessary to quote another set of figures practically the opposite of those given by the first speaker.

Personally I do not doubt that there has been a decrease in the dairy herds of Canada and in the production of butter, but as to the actual number of cattle or millions of pounds of butter I do not know. I would also agree with the minister that there has been an increase in the price of dairy cattle, but there has been a greater increase in the price of beef cattle, which fact has affected the price of dairy cattle, so that certainly does not prove that the dairy industry has not been affected by the Australian treaty. I want to point out to the Minister of Finance and to the government that discrimination has been shown against this branch of agriculture by the Australian treaty, a discrimination in the sense that the little protection which was given the farmers on the one or two items upon which a tariff is practicable was taken away and no corresponding reductions were made with regard to the articles which enter into the production of the commodities so dealt with. That is a discrimination. It has been said that the benefits to Canada of the Australian treaty were purchased and paid for by the dairy industry. I do not think there is any doubt about that; if the dairymen are to be deprived of the protection which they had on the one or two articles on which it was possible to place a tariff, then they should have a corresponding reduction in tariffs on highly protected items which enter into their business.

It does not require any statement from me to prove that the farmers of Canada generally have expressed themselves as being opposed to tariffs, but I think I am correctly interpreting the opinion of the farmers of my own province when I say that they ask for equal treatment in this regard. If it is impossible to give them the same protection which is given to everyone else, then protection should not be given to anyone. That is their challenge. If you universalize protection, then no particular class will suffer. The nation may suffer or it may gain, as the case may be, depending on which is the correct view, but if you protect every class then no class will be unduly burdened. You must do one thing or the other; you must either protect the farmers equally with all other classes or you must not protect anyone. That is the position which the farmers in the west are beginning to take. They are opposed to tariffs, but they are saying also that they should receive equal treatment. If you are going to protect the manufacturers and then take off the protection which the farmers had, conditions will be a great deal worse. Protection is not a moral issue, it is a matter of dollars and cents. It concerns the implements and other things which the farmer needs, and no farmer can afford to set himself upon a moral pedestal and say: Because I have subscribed to a so-called Liberal doctrine for twenty years, that is no reason why I should allow my business to be ruined by an injustice of this kind. This is not a moral question, it is an economic one, and economic principles alone must govern. In taking this new attitude the farmers of the west cannot be said to have abandoned their principles; they stand just as ready as ever for free trade.

I will even challenge the hon. gentleman (Mr. Forke) who assumes to have the right to speak for all the farmers and say so far as I know there is no farmer organization in western Canada which has not expressed itself as being in favor of the principle of free trade, they are the only people, however, who do express those ideas. Nevertheless, they are saying: Since you will not give us free trade, do not protect everyone else and leave us to pay the bill. That is the position they are beginning to take, and surely it is a reasonable one.

What does the Minister of Finance (Mr. Robb) have to say in reply to this question which has brought to the attention of parliament, this question which is engaging the serious attention of a very important branch of the agricultural industry in Canada? What remedy does the minister offer to parliament and to the people of Canada? His first point is to attempt to prove that the Conservatives had done even worse on one occasion. Mr. Speaker, I know that that is a very common political answer, and I do not suppose the minister is open to any more severe criticism for making it than is any other minister who has adopted that attitude in past years. I suggest to the minister that it is too much of an old-fashioned argument, it is too stupid an argument for a brilliant man like himself to present. I would ask him to drop that kind of parrying and face the question squarely. What do the farmers of western Canada care about the allegation that on one occasion the Conservative party advocated the bringing in of oleomargarine and that such is said by the Minister to be much worse than what has been brought in by the Liberal party? That is no answer to the argument; it is not even recognizing the problem, and is unworthy of the minister.

Then the minister disputes the fact that there is a problem; he says it does not exist and that the removal of protection has increased the industry, given higher profits to the farmers, and, according to the Montreal Gazette, has produced more milk and more of anything else which goes to make a flourishing industry. I hope that someone will be in a position to challenge the minister's figures. I am quite satisfied that they are incorrect, but I am not going to offer another set of figures.

Then the minister offers a solution to the dairymen of Canada. He tells them that, although they have been receiving less for their butter and have suffered a little through the reduction in the tariff, the country has been able to ship out $130,000,000 worth of goods to New Zealand more than would have been possible had this reduction not been taken away. If the minister wanted to make a donation of $130,000,000 to New Zealand, why should he ask the farmers of Canada to assume any sacrifice in order to make that possible? The donation could have been made direct without touching the tariff on butter at all. If he did not make a donation to New Zealand of $130,000,000, for which he received nothing, then what did he do? What is the meaning of this? I would say to the minister that that argument is a halfbaked platitude and one which never was and never will be true in relation to international trade. There is no such thing as a favorable or adverse balance of trade. It must be built up either by doing or through making presents to the other people. Surely the time has come when the minister should stop making these meaningless statements as an excuse for having done something which he should not have done, or for not having done that which he should have done.

The minister next quotes from the newspapers and claims that the Montreal Gazette has a more accurate knowledge as regards milk than have the cows and the men who milk them. I suggest that he consult with the men in western Canada who are milking the cows and find out whether or not they agree with him that the Australian treaty has improved the dairy industry. If it has not improved that industry, why does the minister frankly admit it? I would not blame him for having made the experiment, but I am blaming him for denying that a certain thing has happened when those engaged in the industry concerned and best qualified to know assert that it has. I blame him for refusing to face the issue.

Then the Minister of Immigration (Mr. Forke) rises to extend his profound sympathy to the town-dweller agriculturists of Canada. We all know that the Minister of Immigration is a very sympathetic gentleman; he could not help but be sympathetic to anyone, and in extending sympathy to the farmers he is only extending that which he would extend to anyone else. At any rate there can be no doubt that the farmers who had to reduce their production of butter last year because of the treaty which the Minister of Immigration helped to put into effect, will be very glad of his sympathy, and probably will be better with it than they would be without it. But I fail to see how it will raise the price of butter or improve the industry concerned.

The Minister of Immigration tells us next that conditions are not as bad as they might be. That is always one of the pleas of the Minister of Immigration. I was going to say I should like to see conditions so bad that he would not say that, but I will take that back and express it in this way—I should like to know how bad things would have to be before the minister would agree that they were bad enough. The argument of the Minister of Immigration in his concluding remarks was that protection does not protect. He did not say it in so many words, but this is the logic of his argument; that the manufacturing industry would be far better off without any protection at all, for surely it follows that if the dairymen are better off without protection the manufacturers also would be better off without protection. If the manufacturers are better off with protection, then by the same token so would the agricultural industry be better off with it.

Mr. Forke: I would ask the hon. gentleman to continue his own speech and not to put words into my mouth.

Mr. Irvine: I would not think of putting words into the hon. member's mouth, because they would so fill it that the reasoning of my hon. friend that they would be incongruous, and I have sufficient of the artistic in my nature to be ashamed of incongruities. I am trying to get at the reasoning of my hon. friend. Maybe there was not any, but I understood he was endeavoring to reason, and that the basis of his reasoning was that protection did not protect. I have heard my hon. friend argue that manufacturers in Canada are a privileged class; that protection does them good; that it gives them higher profits. We have never said anything different from that. Our objection to protection is that we have to pay the price the manufacturer gets. That is the argument against the protection of the manufacturer. I never heard anyone say that the manufacturers were not protected, and that protection was not good for them, until the minister argued it tonight. The same logic must apply to agriculture or the dairy industry as to manufacturing in respect to protection. If manufacturers are benefited by protection, then to the same degree must the dairy industry be benefited by it, or there is nothing in the principle.

A Severe Attack of Dysentery Checked by 4 Doses

Mr. J. Burtonwood, 620-22nd St. W., Saskatoon, Sask., writes: "My child, when only seven months old, had a very severe attack of dysentery, and after three days' treatment with other things we decided to use

On this day his bowels had moved twenty-three times in eleven hours, but four doses checked it. "A short time ago we offered it to a neighbor who had a baby who was troubled, and it too was relieved within thirty hours. "We both always keep a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' handy at all times." This medicine had been on the market for over 30 years, put up only by The T. Millburn Co. Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

ciple of protection. I am not arguing for protection; I am simply pointing out that it must be as true in the one case as in the other, and we get nowhere by arguing that protection does not protect. Protection does protect those who have the privilege, but other people have to pay the price.

The fact of the matter now is that under the Australian treaty the men who produce butter in Canada had their protection reduced in order that protected goods of Canadian manufacturers could find a market. In New Zealand and other countries in return for the butter that was shipped into this country under the price at which the Canadian producers could afford to produce it. That is the situation. Therefore the pious wish of the Minister of Immigration that he would live to see the day when the farmers would be out of all their troubles will not avail much, if we will not face the fact, which is that the Australian treaty has been detrimental to this industry. The question is whether some other way can be found to relieve the pressure which the Australian treaty has brought to bear upon this industry. That is the problem of the government. But the solution of this question is not going to be assisted in any way by a complete denial of the fact, a denial by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Robb) that there has been any harm at all done to the industry, an argument by the Minister of Immigration that protection does not protect, and by not facing the fact that the Australian treaty had a direct and detrimental effect upon the dairy situation.

That is the situation as I see it, and as I indicated at the outset I doubt whether a discussion of this kind, thrown as it inevitably always is upon a partisan basis, will get agriculture very far. I would suggest that at another session of parliament the government should institute a careful inquiry into the whole subject of agriculture in Canada from an economic standpoint, with a view to finding a remedy. If the United States, for instance, as some hon. gentlemen opposite would suggest, has followed the wrong course in raising the tariff on agriculture, as they may have, we will learn a lesson and will not follow their example. But certain it is that agriculture in this country requires some kind of assistance or direction, whether it be in the way the United States are doing or in some other way, and we must find our own way. We will not find it by refusing to admit the problem or in refusing to study it in a proper manner.

The lawyer had returned home after an important case in which he had been defending a man charged with murder.

"He was acquitted," beamed the lawyer.

"Wonderful! On what grounds?"

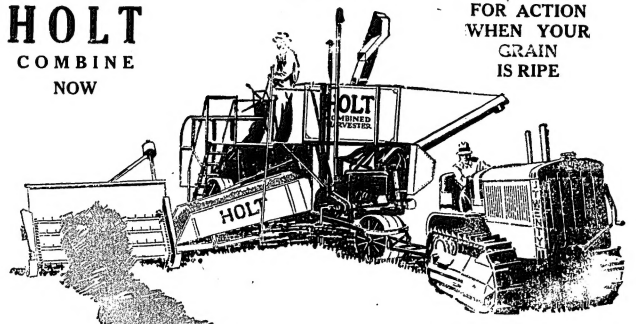

"Insanity. I proved that his father had spent five years in a lunatic asylum."

"But he hadn't, had he?"

"Yes," said the barrister, "he was a doctor there; but I saw no need to bring that fact out."

How to Nab the Mysterious Mr. Raffles

"Raffles" is the assumed name adopted for this occasion by a well-known resident of Wetaskiwin district. He may live in the city. He may not. That's for you to find out. He will be in Wetaskiwin all day Wednesday, August 7th, and he's going to be in the thick of the crowd at the Alberta Championship Track and Field Meet. He may not be there in the morning. He may—that's also for you to find out. He'll undoubtedly be walking our streets in the morning, perhaps before nine o'clock, perhaps not until after ten o'clock. But he will not submit to "arrest" on the thoroughfare. He must be captured in the athletic park between the hours of one and five o'clock—or he'll reward whatever will be paid. He will watch the races from the north side of the track early in the afternoon and will move around with the crowd part of the time within the enclosure. If not captured, he will cross the track to the oval between three and four o'clock—and generally make himself right at home as one of the crowd. He expects to have a crack at the horse shoe pitching game and will patronize the "juice joints" on more than one occasion, calling probably for a cigarette, chewing gum, bottle of pop or an ice cream cone.

The mysterious Mr. Raffles will be dressed in a light suit of clothes, will wear a soft hat, white collar and four-in-hand tie and he will be shod in Oxfords. Now, then, to nab him. In the first place, save this copy of The Times. Place it in your best go-to-meeting clothes, so that you'll have it ready on the 7th of August. Then do your shopping and be sure to secure a cash sales slip to the value of 50 cents from any or all of the merchants advertising on these two pages. Be sure you have the slips in your pocket when you set forth on August 7th. When you "spot" the Mysterious Mr. Raffles, you quietly step up to him, produce the sales slips and the copy of The Times, and accost him with these specific words: "YOU ARE THE MYSTERIOUS MR. RAFFLES OF THE WETASKIWIN TIMES AND I HEREBY PRESENT YOU WITH A WARRANT FOR YOUR ARREST."

If you present the proper credentials and address him correctly as above, he will admit his identity. You will then escort your captive to the platform, he will inform announcer Bill Matthews, who will in turn make the announcement to the crowd, that the Mysterious Mr. Raffles is in captivity.

You will then be presented with a cheque for ten dollars by the Wetaskiwin Sports Association, and each merchant will present to you the reward announced in their advertisement, slip for a purchase made between July 25th and August 7th. Your name must be written on the slip as the person making the purchase. You have a chance to make many dollars.

How to Secure Mis-spelt Word Prize

Five dollars in cash will be presented by the Wetaskiwin Sports Association to the first correct answer received in the "mis-spelt word" competition. In each of the advertisements appearing on the special "Raffles" pages, there appears one or more typographical errors, i.e., a letter or letters are missing from one or more words. Read every advertisement very carefully and where a letter or letters are missing, list same on a piece of paper.

For instance, take an advertisement for John Jones and Company, Limited. The letter "i" is missing from the word "limited." This letter, would be one of those utilized, in forming your sentence.

When you have carefully noted every missing letter, assemble these letters together in proper order to constitute a slogan which has especial reference to the Alberta Championship Track and Field Meet, to be held in Wetaskiwin on Wednesday, August 7th.

Place your answers in an envelope, sign your name and address, and mail to Misspelled Words Committee, c/o Times Office, Wetaskiwin. No answer received after Tuesday, August 6, at 6 p.m., will be considered.

The correct answers will be listed in the order in which they are received. At 3 p.m. on Wednesday, August 7th, Mayor Montgomery will announce the winner and present the cheque if the lucky party is present to receive the same. If not, cheque will be mailed to the winner.

DON'T STOP MY PAPER

Don't stop my paper, printer,
Don't strike my name off yet;
You know the times are stringent,
And the dollars hard to get;
But I'll work a little harder,
That's what I mean to do,
And get the dimes together,
And send them off to you.

I can't afford to drop it;
I find it would not pay
To do without your paper,
However others may;
I would not ask my neighbors
To give me theirs on loan;
They don't just say, but mean it,
"Why don't you buy your own?"

You can't tell how I miss it,
If it, by any fate,
Should happen not to reach us,
Or come a little late;
Then all is in a hubbub,
And things go all awry,
We cannot do without it;
You know the reason why.

The young folks want the stories,
And I am anxious too,
At first to glance it over,
And then to read it through,
I cannot do without it,
It is no use to try,
For other people take it,
And printer, so must I.

CANADIAN CHAMPION ON CARD WITH NORMA CHIDDY

Referring to the appearance of Miss Norma Chiddy of Wetaskiwin, as the stellar attraction at the athletic carnival in Cardston, southern Alberta, on August 15, the Cardston News says: "She will be here to compete against Bertha Hansen in the 100 yard and the 220 yard dash. Norma Chiddy is the Senior Provincial Champion in these two events, having won quite handsomely at the Senior Track Meet which was held in Banff last year. Bertha Hansen won the Junior 100 and 220 yard dashes at Wetaskiwin but was forced to establish Provincial records in both cases to win. These two events should be worth going a long way to see. In addition to the above, Miss Chiddy will give an exhibition high and broad jump. Willard Brooks will be seen against outside competition in the 220 yards and Bill Laidlaw will run the 440. Doris Pilling, who holds the Canadian record for the javelin throw, will also be in attendance to show the boys 'how to heave the stick'."

Miss Hansen will appear here in defense of her honors as junior champion sprinter in the 100 and 220 yards, on Wednesday, August 7th. She will also be entered in the running high jump. Miss Chiddy will compete in the Women's Championships on that occasion and will not be pitted against the junior class.

WETASKIWIN DEFEATS RED DEER ON LOCAL DIAMOND

The Red Deer baseball team came up on Monday evening to return the game with the Wetaskiwin Moose, which was played recently at Sylvan Lake, and went home with the short end of a 7-6 score. The visitors started in and got a brace of runs in the first inning, which were evened up in the third when Aber and Beckenagie crossed the plate. The next three innings gave Red Deer four runs, which ended their scoring. The Moose got their third counter in the fifth, and it was not until the seventh, when three runners crossed the pan, that the score was tied. Rodvik brought in the winning run in the ninth, with one down. A sunny double by Red Deer in the first was one of the features of the play, which gave the impression that the spectators were in for a good game, but this was not maintained, as listless playing (especially on the part of the Moose) with costly errors, made it difficult for the crowd to keep up interest in the contest. It was only through the determined, consistent work of Rodvik, Craig and one or two others that the game was won. The fact that Dove, the visiting catcher, had a sore finger and could not throw to second, gave the Moose a decided advantage, until he was replaced by Emberton in the seventh. Wetaskiwin was playing in hard luck, as nearly every hit they made landed in the field of a fielder. Ryan received a sprained ankle in the eighth which retired him from the game and Cleland took first base with Aker on second. Gillespie umpired the game, and his decisions were never questioned.

The line-up was:
Red Deer—King, 2b; Emberton, 1b; Isaacson, 3b; Butts, ss; Miller, cf; Dove, c; Erickson, cf; Thompson, lf; Robbins, p.
Wetaskiwin—Thirk, ss; Craig, c; Cleland, 2b; Doupe, rf; Ryan, lb; Hodson, 3b; Aker, cf; Beckenagie, 1b.
After the game, Stanford R. Engdahl, principal of the C.R. public school, and his troupe of schoolboy acrobats, gave a very clever exhibition of acrobatic stunts which pleased the audience.

GOLF

Golf is a form of work made expensive enough for a man to enjoy it. It is physical and mental exertion made attractive by the fact that you have to dress for it in a $200.00 club-house.

Golf is what letter carrying, ditch digging and carpet beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gawky-looking gentlemen who require a different implement for every mood.

Golf is the simplest looking game in the world when you decide to take it up, and the toughest after you have been at it ten or twelve years.

It is probably the only known game a man can play as long as a quarter of a century and then discover that it was too deep for him in the first place. The game is played on carefully selected grass with little white balls and as many clubs as the player can afford. These little balls cost from 75 cents to $25, and it is possible to support a family of ten people (all adults) for five months on the money represented by the balls lost by some golfers in a single afternoon.

A golf course has eighteen holes, seventeen of which are unnecessary and put into make the game harder. A "hole" is a tin cup in the centre of a "green." A "green" is a small parcel of grass costing $1.98 a blade and usually located between a brook and a couple of apple trees, or a lot of "unfinished excavation."

The idea is to get the golf ball into each of the eighteen cups in the fewest strokes and the greatest number of words.

The ball must not be thrown, pushed or carried. It must be propelled by about $200 worth of curious looking implements especially designed to provoke the owner.

Each implement has a specific purpose and ultimately some golfers get to know what that purpose is. They are the exceptions. After each hole has been completed, the golfer counts his strokes. Then he subtracts six and says, "Made that in five." That's one above par. Let's play for fifty cents next hole, too, Ed."

After the final, or eighteenth hole, the golfer adds up his score and stops when he has reached eighty-seven. 'He then has a swim, a pint of gin, sings "Sweet Adeline" with six or eight other larks, and calls it the end of a perfect day.

RECORD CROWD ATTENDED NEW NORWAY SPORTS DAY

Blistering sunshine, tempered by a slight breeze, made things warm for the tremendous crowd in attendance at the annual New Norway sports, held on July 17th. It is estimated that over two thousand people were on the grounds and the number of automobiles ran well into the hundreds. The various refreshment booths did a roaring business and tons of ice cream must have been consumed.

It was an ideal day for baseball and the three games listed on the program afforded splendid entertainment. The first game, between Wetaskiwin and Red Willow, was a thriller, being tied up until the eighth inning, when Wetaskiwin secured the winning run. The weather was far too warm for soccer football, but the game between Camrose All-Stars and Dinant-Dumham was well worth watching. The All-Stars, playing in splendid form, fulfilled predictions made after they defeated the Edmonton team by trimming the opposition by a nice margin.

An orchestra from Camrose furnished music at intervals during the day and at night supplied the necessary melodies for a dance. A house-hoosie booth, located on the grounds, did not seem to be doing a very big business, possibly due to the fact that the weather was too warm for that sort of concentrated game.

F. L. Buckley and his committee are to be congratulated upon the arrangements made and to their efforts in no small measure may be ascribed the success of the sports day. Some members of the Committee were A. Holt, W. Coles, Mr. Schmor (secretary), Johnson, A. Dittberner, W. Osborne, S. Westwick and D. Downing. In addition the entire population of the village cooperated. Emil Dittberner was a busy man, presiding over the baseball games as official umpire. Emil performed his duties to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. Altogether it was a glorious day—Camrose Canadian.

Subscriptions paid during September were very few indeed, but we understand the cause—the grain is not yet harvested and money is very tight. But October should be better, and we do not wish to harass anyone with a little bill like a $2.00 subscription. We believe most people, as soon as they can spare the money will be glad to pay this small item. We appreciate the difficulties of this season's financing, and have endeavored to say as little about subscriptions as possible. But we expect our delinquent subscribers to "come through" just as soon as they can.

ROAD MARKING PROGRAM ON SCALE IS ADOPTED BY A.M.A.

Marking of Alberta roads to greatly aid tourists has been decided upon by the Alberta Motor Association, affecting operations in both north and south. It is expected that fully $1,000 will be expended, though it is realized that this will handle but a fraction of what should be done.

A. B. Mackay, president of the A. M. A., expressed his regrets that the Alberta government had not carried out an extensive road marking scheme, when recently in Edmonton. "It was understood that such a policy was to be carried out and it is regrettable that it has not been put into actual effect as yet," said Mr. Mackay. "In my opinion, public men are underestimating the importance and value of tourist traffic to this province."

Signs will be placed by the A.M.A. along the Blue Trail, so it was announced by Fred R. Brason, president of the Calgary branch of the association. The program also includes placing of signs on roads to the oil fields, leading in from the north and out from the south; also from Calgary to Medicine Hat westward. The fact that there were numerous complaints caused the association to take action as soon as possible.

President Frank Barnhouse, of the Edmonton branch, said that in the north the program included marking of the highway from Edmonton to Lloydminster, from Edmonton to Jasper, Edmonton to Wainwright, from Edmonton to Athabasca and from Wetaskiwin to Macleod.

A CAMPING VACATION

The school term ended, the roads in splendid condition, the car running with a contented purr, is a combination that just naturally leads the thoughts to a camping vacation.

The people of Alberta are so fortunate in having many natural beauty spots a short ride from the back door, that this form of holiday is becoming most popular every year. It is economical and it is healthy if certain precautions are taken.

Care should be taken to find out if all drinking water is pure. If this cannot be assured then the water should be boiled or chlorinated. The latter is a very simple proceeding, any drugist will supply the lime and give the few necessary instructions.

If there is a baby or a toddler in the party who must have milk, it is a wise proceeding to pasteurize it. No one can be sure if the milk bought has come from an infection free animal.

D. C. Peterson and His Travels

Dear Friends:

As promised, it is about time we continued our description of our trip. Entering the Yellowstone National Park, it was up grade from Gardiner to Mammoth Camp. This is the largest camp in the park, and the most wonderful part of this camp is the enormous terraces built up for ages from the hot lime springs. A large volume could be written about this one place. We stayed there one day and two nights. On our way from Mammoth to Norris Junction, we saw a mountain which they called the growler. This undoubtedly got its name from a continuous growling noise. There is nothing at Norris Junction but small hot water pools and small geysers. From Norris Junction we went to Canyon and Tower Falls Junction. That canyon is a wonderful sight. It is very deep and formed out of yellow rock, which undoubtedly has given the Yellowstone River its name. From there we went to Old Faithful, and on the way we stopped at an iron spring. Personally, I would have liked to drink that water all my life in preference to moonshine and home brew, for that is all you can get in the U.S. Old Faithful Camp has gotten its name from Old Faithful Geyser, which has been spouting for the past 70 years at least. About every 60 minutes it starts with a roaring noise, and the spray goes as high as 75 ft. There are lots of others, such as paint pots, mud volcano, punch bowl spring, daisy geyser, black sand pool, turquoise geyser, beehive geyser, handkerchief pool. The last named is located in the black sand basin. There is nothing but black sand there. A great many people put their towels in that pool to see them disappear for about a minute and then return to the surface again, washed ready for the ironing board.

Here also is the bears' lunch counter. Every night about dusk, all the scraps and refuse are hauled to that lunch counter, then you will see the bears come from all directions—black bear, cinnamon bear, and grizzly as well, big bear and small ones. A park guard is stationed between the lunch counter and the grandstand. He is not protecting you from the bears, but rather is protecting the bears from the people, for they will not attack anyone unless you bother them. Every night in the camps, a lecture is given or an outdoor play. We must not forget to mention that we had one night of frost at Old Faithful. While you are high up, still you will find all kinds of flowers, we noticed especially the larkspur or delphinium, growing all over.

From there we went to the Thumb. On going there we had to cross the divide twice. The place is located in the southwestern corner of Yellowstone Lake. There we spent another night. The next morning we went to Fishing Bridge. That is the outlet of Yellowstone Lake, and the starting point of the Yellowstone River. Its icy waters empty into the Missouri, the Missouri into the Mississippi, then down into the Gulf of Mexico. Fishing Bridge is a large camp. There is the Government Fish Hatchery, where they hatch thousands of trout. We tried our luck at fishing, but were not lucky enough to catch any. Others were more successful and they gave us some. We enjoyed them very much. There also we saw the pranks of a large bear. He was walking through the camp looking for something to tickle his palate. He was not long in finding it, for a family had left their box of provisions on one of the camp tables. First of all he got hold of a can of lard, which he enjoyed immensely. Next he found a carton of rolled oats, which he tore open, and not liking it, he cast it aside. Next was a can with sugar, which he devoured. By that time the box fell off the table. He found about half a pound of butter, also some jam or jelly. After getting away with that, he kind of rolled things around with his paw, took a look round and walked off.

The last and final description of our trip will follow shortly. In conclusion, we want to say that we are all enjoying good health, and business is good. It is quite warm now. We have lots of rain, so that everything is growing well. We have had radish, lettuce, spinach, carrots, beans, peas and beets out of our garden.

The fourth of July was a tame affair as far as we were concerned, as you cannot get acclimatized in so short a time. All that is left from the celebration is a lot of dead and wounded. Our next letter will follow shortly.

We are, sincerely yours,
P. C. Petersen and Family.

NEW RECORD FOR CAR PRODUCTION IN SIX MONTHS

Detroit, July 13. — The first six months of 1929 will go down in automotive annals as the period in which for the first time the automobile plants produced approximately 3000,000 cars and trucks, or in round figures 1,000,000 more than ever before in a like time.

In connection with the achievement certain high lights developed. Among them is the creation of a new record total for one day's output. This was by the Ford Company, which a few days ago manufactured

9,100 cars in twenty-four hours. The previous record for a single day was made by Ford in October, 1925, when the plants produced 8,710 of the old model in one day.

Alcohol manufacturing performance which will go on record is that of the Chevrolet company in producing and distributing more than 800,000 six cylinder cars in six months. This is the first time it has been done in the six cylinder division. Manufacturers of six cylinder cars, by the way, gained just that number of units beyond the normal rate of increase by the Chevrolet's adoption of the principle at the beginning of this year.

During the first half of 1929 General Motors added to its list of makes the Viking, introduced by the Oldsmobile organization and the Marquette, a product of the Buick factories.

The period also brought the first eight cylinder car listing at less than $1,000. This is the Roosevelt, built by Marmont.

The revival of the front wheel drive principle for passenger cars became actual with the appearance of the Cord car, sponsored by the Auburn company, and named after E. L. Cord, 1 is president and the Ruxton car, by New Era Motors, Inc., headed by A. M. Andrews, New York.

Descriptions of the Cord car became available this week. It is a straight eight with a wheel-base of 137 inches. The engine is of Locomotive manufacture, rated at 125 brake horsepower.

Use of the front wheel drive, it is said, has made it possible to build the chassis four and one-half inches lower than the usual run of rear wheel drive cars. The entire operative mechanism is concentrated in front of the dash. The car both drives and steers through the front wheels. In these models are said to be incorporated the rights and patents developed by Harry A. Miller, Los Angeles racing car designer, which have passed into the ownership of Mr. Cord and the $125,000,000 corporation he has formed.

Here and There

An Indian grave, discovered by accident by Canadian Pacific employees at work near Brooks, Alberta, last May, is estimated to be between 300 and 400 years old. It is thought the grave was originally above ground but the passage of time had buried the grave below the soil. An irrigation ditch was being constructed when the grave was discovered.

Tri-motored airplanes are being launched in one of the most spectacular fights in the history of aviation. War has been declared by the Canadian Government on the spruce bud worm and the airplane is to be the principal weapon of the service. Planes each carry 1,600 pounds of powder, and will dust it while flying low, over the tree tops.

The blueberry industry is showing much improvement in Yarmouth and Shelburne counties, Nova Scotia. Last year there were only 4,000 acres of crown land under the protection of the government. This year 10,000 acres have been burned. Value of crop last year was $65,000 and it is estimated that the crop's value could be increased to half a million dollars.

The province of Alberta has adopted Old Age Pensions, the funds for which are provided by co-operation between the federal and provincial governments. The scheme has now been adopted by all Canadian provinces from the Quebec boundary westward.

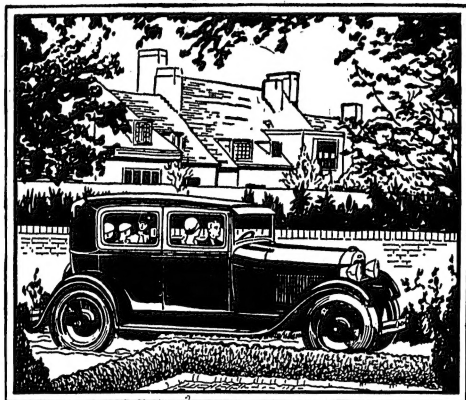

Though crops in several parts of Western Canada would be benefited by rains, crop outlook on the whole is very promising. Reports from all parts of Saskatchewan are generally encouraging. The Alberta report is good, especially the Peace River country where present prospects indicate one of the best crops on record. About 25,000,000 acres are sown with wheat this year. Last year the Dominion harvested over 533,000,000 bushels of wheat, the largest crop in the country's history.

The fourth annual midsummer gathering of the Swedish-Canadian League held a two-day convention at Lac du Bonnet, Manitoba, recently and decided to build a home for Old Swedish folks at Winnipeg. Another feature of the gathering was a pageant of old Swedish folk-dancing and songs presented in old-time costumes. Many of the dancers were the same who appeared at the Regina festival held earlier in the year at the Saskatchewan hotel in that city.

A list of extraordinary accidents has recently been published occurring to motorists at level crossings and included the following:—One driver parked car on tracks and went to sleep. 44 motorists drove into the sides of moving trains. 38 drove into the sides of standing trains. One tried unsuccessfully to drive between railway cars while they were switching. Seven went for a drive along the tracks and met express trains. One driver left his car on the tracks while he went to search for something he had dropped on the road; when he returned there was nothing left of his car. Eleven found out too late that their brakes needed re-lining.

NEW RESIDENTIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS IN WINNIPEG

Profiting by the bequest of $100,000 in the will of the late Sir James Aikins, K.C., former lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, who conceived the project, a new residential school for girls will be opened in Winnipeg next September under the directions of the United Church of Canada, open to children of parents of any denomination

Driving EASE and Riding Comfort

THE Ford car has established new principles in motoring comfort, proving that a light car of convenient wheel base can be made to ride with the same effortless, smooth ease as any of its weightier and more expensive road companions. The unique combination of transverse springs with an Houdaille shock absorber to each wheel, is one of the secrets of this remarkable performance—added to perfect balance and a body and chassis joined like one piece. This accounts for the tendency of the Ford car to hug the road at all speeds.

Peculiarly restful driving is a direct result of this riding comfort. The feather-light steering wheel, that is rock-firm in the hand under any road conditions, gives the driver perfect control. Gears shift with silent precision and the change down from high to second, so often of use in traffic emergency, may be effected in one smooth motion.

Another unusual advantage offered by the Ford car is its turning ability. It is a narrow street indeed in which the Ford car will not turn completely without backing. Think what this means in city parking. A space little longer than the car itself may be used without tiresome manoeuvring.

Views of National Leaders

H. W. Wood to co-operators:—"You have got to realize your responsibilities, and you have got to realize that in meeting these responsibilities it is good, practical, common horse sense that counts, and none of this miserable theory. It is not what you can say and tell about. It is what you can do or tell somebody else that they can do. If you have not an intelligent suggestion as to how a thing can be made better, don't knock. That is competition, that is no co-operation. Constructive criticism is all right; destructive criticism is one of the meanest kinds of competition in the world."

Wheat Pools, stated that the boards of directors of the three Canadian Wheat Pools had arrived at a unanimous conclusion as follows:

"That the practice of mixing as now carried on at the head of the lakes has a bad effect on the quality of our wheat. We believe, in the first place, that there should be no 'earnings' or profits in handling wheat or any commodity through warehouse facilities other than the facilities that are set for that purpose. I think that will explain our fundamental attitude. We believe that mixing as now carried on should be eliminated as far as it is possible and practicable to do so; and as a means to that end we recommend that there be a higher standard established for out-turn grades in the terminals at Fort William than the standards used as the primary inspection point. We suggest that as a means to setting up a higher standard at Fort William we take seventy-five per cent of the average quality of each grade at the primary inspection point together with twenty-five per cent of the minimum, or standard of the grade, at the primary inspection point, or use that mixture as a standard for the out-turn grade from the terminal elevators. I think this would be a correct interpretation. It would mean, if it were accurately done, that such a standard at Fort William would be thirty-seven and one half per cent higher than the standard that is used at the primary inspection point, or twenty and one half per cent below the average quality at the primary inspection point. It would leave a twenty-five per cent leeway around the average quality of the grain—twenty and one half per cent below the average. We find it is necessary to have the leeway in order to ensure that the pool or any other grain organization be able to get out their wheat equal in quality to the higher standard.

"We believe that this will practically eliminate mixing; it will ensure a uniformly higher quality in each grade going out from the terminal elevators, and we regard that as important from the standpoint of being able to secure the most dollars and cents for all our wheat. For instance, if you were to abolish mixing simply by law, by statute, without raising the standard, you would create a condition where you would have cargoes of wheat going from the terminal ranging in quality all the way from the minimum of the grade to the maximum of the grade. This is a matter of opinion, of course; but it can be taken fairly well for granted that the buyer on the other side of the water will be influenced more in the direction of bidding on the minimum quality of the grain because that is what he will possibly, or quite probably, frequently get.

"One of the arguments used in favor of mixing is that by mixing down to somewhere as close as possible to the minimum of the grade you provide for as nearly as possible a uniform quality of grain going out in any particular cargo, and, therefore, you get more dollars and cents actually out of all your wheat. We believe that although that is true, or probably true, you are mixing down all the time—you are mixing down to the minimum. Our suggestion would mean that grain companies, ourselves as well as other grain companies, would be compelled to mix up as well as down in order to have a uniform average quality of the grain going out from terminal elevators. We believe that a uniform quality of grain in all cargoes is essential, or very necessary from the standpoint of the people who buy our grain.

"The Standards Board which will establish the grain standards for each year's crop as soon as practicable after harvest, will be appointed by the board of grain commissioners and is to consist of the commissioners, the chairmen of the boards of Grain Appeal, the chief inspector, the chief chemist of the Board and the Dominion cerealists as ex-officio members, together with one representative of the millers, four representatives of the producers of Alberta, five representatives of the producers of Saskatchewan, three representatives of the producers of Manitoba and one representative of the producers of British Columbia."

NEWSPAPER LAWS

Excerpts from Newspaper Law, printed for the benefit of any reader who may have mistaken ideas regarding same:

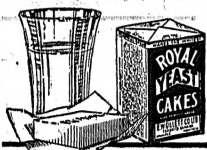

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) if the subscriber does not take the paper out of the post office and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he subscribes or not, is responsible for payment.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This follows the principle that a man must pay for what he uses.

INDIAN SUN DANCE

Constable Pattle, the A.P.P. officer at Rocky Mountain House, has written a story to the head office of the Red Deer sub-district at Red Deer concerning an Indian Sun Dance, June 15 to 18, at the confluence of the Baptiste and Saskatchewan rivers, about 26 miles north of Rocky Mountain House.

The Indians (non-treaty Chippewas and Crees) had been preparing busily for the occasion, buying all manner of brightly colored goods. The police and three local merchants were the only white people allowed to be present.

The camp was circular, with a track in the centre and a ring of teepees around the outer edge, the whole being about a mile across. A concert was held Saturday evening, which lasted till 1 a.m. Sunday. Early Sunday morning (before 6 a.m.) the Indians were "carefully" taking measurements and preparing to build a lodge for the Great Dance. Then followed a parade of young bucks and squaws, riding eight abreast, dressed in gaudy colors and carrying the Sun Pole; the centre pole of the lodge, which was a 35 ft. poplar about 14 inches thick. About forty smaller poles 20 ft. by 8 inches were then carried for the walls. Rituals were indulged in, as these various poles were brought and put in their respective places. Then each member of the parade, about fifty returned carrying aloft a green poplar branch, which gave the appearance of an advancing forest.

The next ceremony was a mounted parade, led by John O'Chase, who had fasted for two weeks for the benefit of all mankind. It is customary for the faster to lead the parade mounted on a horse, but John was too weak, so he was borne on a stretcher, which was laid on a democrat in which he was driven around, leading the parade. Then the lodge was built, 50 feet in diameter by 30 feet high, a ceremony being held as each post was erected. The interior was divided into six-foot stalls, four dancers to each, the bucks on the west side, and the squaws on the east. John O'Chase was laid on a bed of poplar boughs at the north end and the south was left for an entrance. The Indian chiefs, a Tom-Tom band and the lesser Indians gathered in the centre around the Sun Pole. After an address by Chief Yellow Face, the dancing began, which lasted for two days and two nights, without a stop for eating or drinking. They blew their bugles (whistles about a foot long) and worshipped the Great Spirit, the Earth and Fire. During the ceremony, bowls of hot soup were passed around to tempt the dancers, but none accepted.

Several small fires were built round the Sun Pole. An Indian on entering, would begin a pipe. He would then squat on the ground and remove his hat, while the Master of Ceremonies would bring a coal from the Sacred Fire and light his pipe. Only those Indians who belonged to the lodge or belief, or who had partaken in the fast, previously, were given these pipes. After the pipe was lit, the Indian was noticed to be meditating, which was the act of getting in touch with his spirit or dream ghost. The pipe would be completely turned round, from north to east, south and west, and then pointed from those points in rotation to the ground.

The ceremony was explained to the white spectators by a Scotchman, Mr. Bremner, aged 82, whose family were participating. He was the interpreter at Louis Riel's trial and was in Winnipeg when the first R.N.W.M.P. arrived, which was the greatest relief to the white people who feared the Indians and hunters at that time. He hunted the last herd of buffaloes from the Northwest Territories, to Miles City in Montana, and was in a neighboring camp to Buffalo Bill when he loaded a cargo of buffalo hides on the Mississippi River, and left the carcasses to rot on the prairies. He smoked the Pipe of Peace with Chief Sitting Bull and produced the pipe which he stated was handed to him and was over 100 years old. The pipe had a wooden stem about 2 feet long, with a red stone bowl. About eight inches of the stem was stone, carefully cut and carved. He did not allow this pipe to be used in this Sun Dance.

The old chief of this band of Indians, named Jim O'Chase, is still alive. He is blind. They lead the old chap around. He is pretty feeble, but appears to be wonderfully active mentally and will take part in discussions with the rest of the tribe. There was quite a story told about the old chief, by Dave Desjardis, the interpreter, and if authentic, is very interesting. About 104 years ago there was a plague of smallpox in Montana, which spread to the Northwest Territories. O'Chase was an infant at the time and in a camp of about 200 teepees. The entire camp was wiped out with the exception of one lone male, and he, after recovering from the illness, made a survey of the teepees and found one infant, sucking the breast of its dead mother. The infant was Jim O'Chase. This child was taken to the north when five years old, and when the camp was migrating to the

The camp is still up on the Baptiste and Saskatchewan rivers, where they will most likely stay until fall when they will probably move to the Rimby district. While in this district, the most of them are employed cutting brush and clearing land for the farmers.

HAY CROPS IN MIXED FARMING ROTATIONS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Of all the Dominion Illustration Stations in Manitoba and Eastern Saskatchewan, clover, alfalfa, perennial grasses and grass and legume mixtures are under demonstration as hay crops in mixed farming rotations.

Place of Hay in the Rotation
Sweet clover yields profitably on nearly any type of soil, but for best results should be seeded on land which has been well prepared. It has done well when seeded with a nurse crop of grain at any time in the cycle of a rotation, but does best with the first crop following summer-fallow or corn. The last grain crop before fallowing is usually weeder and in poorer till than fallow land and this militates somewhat against a successful catch.

Alfalfa, seeded alone, incurs considerable initial expense. It is a persistent yielder over a long period of years and as such should be grown on fields aside from a short cycle of cropping, where it provides a crop cheaply produced and of high quality and should be left down as long as the yields are profitable.

Grasses, such as western rye grass, bromegrass and timothy, usually are most profitable when seeded with a grain crop following fallow or corn. Suitable stands may be secured on well prepared clay and heavy loam soil with the second or third grain crop in the rotation. This procedure is not so advisable on lighter loam soils.

The Value of Hay Mixtures
Clover and grass mixtures appear superior to either class of hay alone. Alfalfa as a single crop is in most respects more valuable than mixed hay, but when incorporated with grasses it is less expensive to seed and as such fits well into a mixed farming rotation. Mixtures have numerous advantages, the chief being that covers feed deeply while grasses draw from the upper layers of soil a condition which tends towards higher yields than when either class is grown singly. Furthermore, legumes are easier to cure when grown with grasses, and sweet clover on richer soils yields a more acceptable fodder when mixed with a grass hay.

Influence of Hay Crops on Soil
Legumes as individual hay crops usually leave the soil in a more productive state than grasses or mixed hay. The chief benefit from grass to any soil is the addition of fibre. On most prairie soils, it is generally conceded that clover and alfalfa are improvement crops through various influences. Their deep, strong rooting habit opens the subsoil, aerating it and permitting necessary drainage on low lying lands. Their root nodules collect nitrogen from the air, surround and decompose it as the roots decompose in the soil in nitrate form readily available as plant food. They should therefore be included in a hay crop whenever possible.

As Cleaning Crops
Hay crops are beneficial on a rotation for weed control. Comparatively few weeds ripen before haying, consequently many of these are eradicated while others are greatly checked. If soil land is ploughed as soon as the first cutting of hay is removed, perennial weeds such as Canada thistle and sow thistle are turned over summer-fallow for the remainder of their weakest stage and a thorough season is a most effective method of bringing them under control.

HOW I STAND

Each month I figure each amount I have in every bank account. A little here, a little there, and while it is not in flowing hand—Each month I figure how I stand.

And yet myself I never ask, Myself I never take to task, I never ask myself the way I really stand myself today—Not at the banks, but how I look in something else beside a book.

How do I look in other's eyes? A bit more foolish, but more wise? Yes, when the month begins or ends, How do I stand among my friends? How does the page of life appear? To those I know, to those most dear?

Have I lived down some foolish past? Have I learned common sense at last? Have I paid off a debt or two, Some bank of love I overdraw? Whatever figures may infer, Have I improved my character?

I wonder what men think of me? I wonder just what women see? A darker soul, a cleaner mind, A heart more cruel or more kind? Perhaps my monthly balance grows— I may be poorer, though, God knows.

Folks know that I am doing well; They know how much I buy and sell; But do they think of me tonight Not doing well, but doing right? With God and family and land I wonder how I really stand?

NEW SOURCES OF INCOME FOR THE FARMER

Geo. F. Root has received a copy of the Cornstalk Special Evening Herald, published at Huron, South Dakota. It is the first daily newspaper in the Northwest and the second newspaper in the world printed on sheets of paper made from by-products formerly wasted on the farm. The work of chemists and manufacturers along this line, up to date is inspiring and suggests that it is chemists, not legislators, who are destined to solve the problems of agriculture. We note that 92 products, other than food-stuffs, have already been developed from cornstalks, waste from the corn harvest. Between 200 and 300 useful materials are made. Among these are: movie picture films, and insulation for radios, silk hose, lingerie, pen-holders, phonographic records, writing papers, lumber, lacquers, pipes, artificial leather, celluloid, exallic acid, wall-board, wood tar, oils, innumerable, embalming fluid, explosives, alcohol and tannin used in the manufacture of synthetic resins, solvents and insecticides. Danville, Ill., is one of the manufacturing centres of cellulose products; cornstalk paper is manufactured at Tilton, Ill. Oat straw is being manufactured by a mill in Minneapolis into products worth over $100 per ton of straw. Dubuque, Ia., is operating a wall board plant, shipping baled cornstalks by rail from Danville. Scientists and manufacturers of farm machinery are collaborating to perfect machines to cheapen the cost of cutting and baling the crop. These practical demonstrations in bringing factories to the waste by-products of grain growing are of interest to Alberta farmers, as they already produce such raw material as barley, wheat and oat straw, milkweed and goldenrod, and the profitable growing of corn has progressed northward about 400 miles in the last 60 years.

POOL MAKES PAYMENT OF ONE DOLLAR

Calgary, July 23.—One dollar a bushel will be the interim payment on wheat for grain delivered to the 1929-30 crop, according to an announcement made Tuesday morning at the Alberta Wheat Pool offices. Last fall when a bad slump in wheat prices occurred the initial payment was lowered from $1.00 to 85 cents, but the previous interim payment will be issued this fall.

WETASKIWIN CREAM POOL COMPLETES ORGANIZATION

About seventy-five of the farmers of the Wetaskiwin district met in the U.P.A. hall on Monday afternoon to perfect the organization of the local Cream Pool.
Mr. Freeman was in the chair and Mr. Rickard acted as secretary.
Mr. E. E. Sparks gave an interesting address on what the temporary board had done, and emphasized the fact that the Alberta government were not in the money-lending business, but had only guaranteed part of the purchase price, according to the terms of the Co-operative Act passed at the last session.

Mr. MacAllister, the manager of the creamery, read his report, which showed that the output had increased materially since the farmers had taken it over.

The meeting decided not to collect any membership fee, as the board had donated their services free for organization work. A resolution was passed to the effect that all patrons of the Creamery shall be eligible to participate in any bonus that may be declared according to amount of butterfat delivered. A recess was taken so that those present could get an opportunity to sign the contract, everyone present indicated his confidence in the organization by signing the contract, except two who are considering the matter.

The following directors were elected for the ensuing term: Messrs. E. E. Sparks, Widen, Waterston, Herman Strooschen and W. Maxwell.

The meeting gave a hearty vote of thanks to the temporary board for the very efficient work they had done. After the meeting had adjourned, a session was held and Mr. E. E. Sparks was elected President, Mr. Dave Widen, vice-president, and Mr. William Maxwell, secretary.

WETASKIWIN BOY HAVING WONDERFUL TRIP WITH SCOUTS

The Times has received word from Roger Paton, who is on his way to attend the Scouts jamboree at Birkton head, England, that he is having a wonderful trip. He wrote from Ottawa and stated that he had a good trip down to the capital city and that great receptions were given the party at Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg. At Calgary the party was photographed and taken out to the Tenth Troop headquarters, where they had a camp fire and ate lunch. At Regina, the whole town and band were at the station, "and we sure raised whoopee on the train." When we arrived at Winnipeg we were taken for a bus ride around the city.

The letter further states that "last Sunday we had a long leave, so four of us went over to Hull from Ottawa and spent our time at Luna Park, on the roller coasters, skooters, etc. We are pretty well up to date in camp, because we have a real camp paper. We go swimming every afternoon and have a route march with our packs every morning. We had a bus ride around Ottawa yesterday. Today we went through the parliament buildings and had our pictures taken. Premier King gave us an interesting address while we were at the parliament buildings. I am feeling fine now and having plenty of sport."

CROP CONDITIONS LESS PROMISING SAYS C.P.R. REPORT
Winnipeg, Man., July 22.—Extreme heat accompanied by hot drying winds in some districts intensify the need of rains on the prairies especially in Alberta, reports the General Agricultural Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway this morning. Scattered showers of several hours rain fell in some districts during the week, but the hot atmosphere and absence of any general precipitation has rendered the crop condition less promising than last week. A large percentage of wheat is now in head and some of the early varieties in flower and milk stage on straw ranging from 14 to 20 inches, with some shorter and some fields considerably higher, moisture, being of course, the factor of growth. Oats and barley are backward and generally on the short side, with some of the former and much of the latter in the head, but require much moisture to produce even a fair crop of feed in the drouth districts.

Taking the situation as a whole, it is difficult to definitely forecast the outcome of the present spotty condition of the crop as much depends on receipt of frequent rains to develop and fill the heads already risen. Much of the summerfall grain is holding up well, but stubble, fall and spring plowed crops are almost a failure, and
